

Nick Bishop Solutions

We are all blessed with unique skills and talent

Always use your unique skills

As I walked along the road recently, two things caught my eye. A squirrel scampering down a tree, and then a cat doing similar but upwards! It set me thinking. We all have a unique set of talents and skills. All provided for our own individual circumstances.

No one is without talent, in fact we have talent beyond our wildest dreams...It's if we decide to use the skills that we are blessed with.

So talent or skills?

A talent is something we do naturally. Something that we do not think about...We just do it, and with little effort.

A skill is something that we learn. Something that we develop. Something that we may need to learn and be shown how to become proficient. And yet, when learned it appears a talent.

Are best-selling authors talented or do they develop skills?

Are great sportsman talented or do they spend hours of practice? And even more relevant, what of the marvellous Paralympian athletes that we see?

Returning to the start of this blog, we all have talents. Similarly, we all have the opportunity to learn new skills. Sadly, we sometimes hear the expression "they wasted their talent". Or "they chose not to develop any new skills". The one thing that sets others apart is mind set. Recognising and using all of their talent. Always learning and wanting to grow in life, developing new skills.

We get but one life...Be the best version of you possible...You owe it to yourself!

You just have to find that thing that's special about you that distinguishes you from all the others, and through true talent, hard work, and passion, anything can happen.

Dr Dre.